DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-48, 50-97, 99-145, and 147 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claim 1, it is disclosed that the communication server includes logic that accesses a CIS. Subsequently, it is disclosed that a CIS is coupled to the communication server. It is therefore unclear whether the first CIS accessed by the communication server is different from the CIS that is coupled to the communication server, since there is no indication that they are the same.

Claims 1 and 50 recite the limitation "the communication server's user-related information." Upon its recitation, there is no previous mention of "the communication server's user-related information" in the claims in question. As such, there is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim, since the nature of the communication server's user-related information is unclear.

In claim 99, there is disclosure of a sixth computer readable code with no apparent function, followed by a seventh computer readable code with a stated function. It is unclear whether these two codes were meant to be the same, or whether the sixth computer readable code was supposed to have a separate function. Additionally, there appears to be a typographical error, such that “forth” is to read “fourth”.

All remaining claims are rejected on the basis of their dependency on their aforementioned independent parent claims.
